MISCELLANEOUS READING.

ROMANCE AMONG THE TURKS A correspondent of the Penusylvanian, writing from Constantinople, relates the following romantic story:

"I have just heard from an authentic pr vate source, of a startling incident, while occurred a few days since at Damascus, an bids fair to rival the most exaggerated mance of Eastern story. One of the fairpearls of this terrestial paradise has forfeared her position as Houri, in the abode of me Turkish Lord, by an indiscreet passion for a Jaw, the dragoman of one of the Consulator ly Matrimony," without any suspicion attach ed to her fidelity. Her position, as one of the first ladies of Damascus in beauty and Class 41, draws Saturday, November 13, 1868. Class 42, draws Saturday, November 20, 1858. Class 43, draws Saturday, November 27, 1858. of female costume for some time, and was only discovered by an indiscretion in his movements. By secret aid she escaped to the desert, where she cluded the vengeance of her pursuers but a few hours.

"Her body was cut to pieces, and with the curses of the Koran, her mutilated remains were left to bleach unburied in token of her shame. In the meantime the greatest exette ment prevailed in the city, which threatened to involve all Christians in an indiscriminate massacre, so long as their thirst of blood was unappeased and the dragoman had escape their hands. He had been mysterious rescued from prison, and transferred Beirut. From there he will probably me his escape to sea, and save his body from to torch of the Moslem. > Some writer has compared friendship to our shadows, and a better comparison was never made; for while we walk in the sanshine of prosperity, it sticks to us, but the moment we enter the shades of adversity, it deserts us.

Those people who turn up their noses at the world, might do well to reflect that it is as good a world as they were ever in, and a much better one than they are ever likely to get into again.
